PROFILE

In 2020 I graduated from Kasumigaoka High school, Japan, where I was enrolled in a specialist English course throughout the three years of my secondary school career. While at school I worked hard to develop my Japanese and English communication skills and, whilst maintaining careful focus on my studies, developed myself wholeheartedly to a series of my school events and activities.

I am currently a student at the University of Essex where I am continuing to develop my English skills as I conduct studies into areas including film analysis, British society and culture, and world history.
